Marc Stevens Wins AMCHP MCH Graduate Scholarship

DrPH student Marc Stevens received the MCH Graduate Scholarship at the 2015 Annual conference of the Association of Maternal and Child Health Programs. The theme of the conference, which was held in Washington, DC, was “United to Build Healthier Communities.”

Marc has previously been recognized as both a Senior Fellow and a Student Fellow for the Maternal and Child Health Section of the American Public Health Association, and was recently recognized as a Southern Regional Education Board State doctoral scholar. His research is focused on health disparities, especially maternal and child health issues. He anticipates graduating with a DrPH with a concentration in Epidemiology this May.

Marc, who is originally from Louisiana, received his MPH from East Carolina University and his BS in Microbiology from Nicholls State.

“This scholarship offers opportunities for education development, leadership development, networking, and it provides an opportunity for a person like myself to come to a forum to learn about emerging and national MCH issues.”