Virtual International Living: Learning Across Global Environments

You know the importance of cultural sensitivity, but do you understand why people live as they do?

The VILLAGE is a multi-nation village that includes accurate replicas of how people live in rural and isolated communities across the world, and which serves as a simulation lab for students to address “real-world” problems in “real-world” settings.

A regional scholar said of the program, “It was an amazing experience that can be applied out in the real world to make a difference.”
