Eleven East Tennessee State University students have been selected for inclusion in the most recent edition of Who’s Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges.

Since 1934, the publication has honored outstanding students who demonstrate “academic achievement, service to the community, leadership in extracurricular activities and potential for continued success.” Those selected join representatives from “more than 2,300 institutions of higher learning in all 50 states, the District of Columbia and several foreign nations.”

Of these eleven, four are students in the College of Public Health.

Victoria Howard graduated from Sevier County High School, where she was involved in multiple community service organizations and peer tutoring. At ETSU, she is majoring in Health Sciences with a concentration in Microbiology. She is pursuing a career in optometry while working as an optometric assistant. Victoria has studied abroad in India and traveled to Haiti to participate in eye clinics in remote villages. She has served as Recruitment Advisor, Vice President, and President of the Epsilon Xi Chapter of Phi Sigma Pi National Honor Fraternity at ETSU. Aside from class work, Victoria enjoys photography as a hobby.

Kammy Kuang resides in Johnson City and her parents, Dongping Kuang and Meiyan Huang reside in Canton, China. A graduating senior studying public health, she is the founder of the ETSU International Student Association and secretary of the Public Health Student Association. She is SGA Secretary of State and responsible for the coordination of the campus Civility Week. A research assistant at the Pediatric Department of the Quillen College of Medicine, she also serves on the College of Public Health Diversity and Social Justice Committee. Among her recognitions are the Shae Keane Peace Award, the International Students Academic Merit Scholarship and the College of Public Health John P. Lamb Memorial Scholarship. She is a group leader and executive board member of the International Buccaneer Buddies Program and a member of the Volunteer ETSU Leadership Team, as well as Phi Kappa Phi and Golden Key International Honour Society.
Katherine Starrett is a senior majoring in health sciences with a concentration in microbiology. She is president of the Pre-Student Osteopathic Medical Association and the undergraduate student advisor for the Pre-Health Living Learning Community. A member of Kappa Delta Sorority, she has served in various capacities with the SGA. She also serves as president of the Student Council for the College of Public Health. Her parents are Jimmy and Kay Starrett of Murfreesboro.

Hena Yakoob, a University Honors Scholar through the Honors College, is a senior majoring in health sciences with a concentration in microbiology and a minor in Spanish. An undergraduate researcher in the Department of Biomedical Sciences at the Quillen College of Medicine, she recently completed an honors thesis based on her research.
