

NADE 2009

Simplify the Difficult: Start with the Basic Skills

50-word Summary

Students find some algebra topics more difficult to learn than others. Solving formulas for a specific variable, rational expressions, and simplifying radicals are some examples. The presenter will share techniques for teaching these, and other, “hard” topics by emphasizing basic skills and building up to the new, more difficult concepts.