   Proposal was presented to the committee by Dishod Achilov, Assistant Professor in Political Science.

   Proposal: Debbie Dotson, who reviewed the proposal for the committee, recommended a more succinct catalog course description.

   Reviewers noted that the course goal text more appropriate for the purpose field. Dotson noted that goals need to address more specifically what the course is expected to do for student. Revised text was recommended by Dotson.

   Sample Course Syllabus: Committee noted that under the attendance field, more specific information needs to be given about any specific penalty for absences. Achilov noted that the bibliography attached to the sample syllabus focuses mostly on ‘classic’ scholarly papers as well as the most recent scholarship. Alison Deadman and Jason Davis urged clarification in the assignments field: of what percentage of the final course grade is participation worth (?), for example. Mel Page urged emphasizing engagement with reading assignments and the quality of participation, and not merely attendance in the assessment of participation. (Language course is a 4596).

Action: Motion to accept provisionally with editorial revisions, Green; Second, Debbie Dotson, approved by unanimous vote.

b. (2:25-2:45) New Course Proposal: BIOL 4377/5377 Tropical Botany in Ecuador (Timothy McDowell)
Suzanne Smith & Ellen Drummond

Proposal: Suzanna Smith noted that credit-hour maximum needs to be switched to n/a.

Sample Course Syllabus: Alison Deadman noted that information about quizzes where vague (number not specified). Alison also urged more specific information about expectations for participation; but McDowell had clarified this field to the satisfaction of the committee.
