The Department of Early Childhood Education in the Clemmer College offers an interdisciplinary undergraduate degree in early childhood development. The licensure program is designed to provide academic preparation (0-8), their families, and environmental factors influencing their development, and leads to PreK-3 teaching prepares candidates to work in the field of early childhood education not requiring a license (e.g., childcare, childhood education program offers a minor in early childhood education and opportunity for adding an early education licenses.

This program in Early Childhood is designed to meet the state competencies for licensure in PreK-3. It includes professional education component, and residency teaching experiences in PreK-3rd grade.

Graduate Study: The Department of Early Childhood Education offers a graduate program leading to a master's degree in three concentrations (Initial Licensure, Master Teacher, Researcher). In addition, a Ph.D. in early childhood education. Also available are two online graduate programs, a Master's Certificate in Emergent Inquiry and M.A. degree in early childhood education program may be obtained from the School of Graduate Studies. <https://www.etsu.edu/gradstud/>

Teacher Licensure Progression: Students wishing to pursue a course of study leading to an Early Childhood Education major at any time. When declared, the student is admitted into the teacher licensure program after they have met the requirement. The teacher candidate then proceeds through the established program of study meeting the detailed requirements. Failure to meet the established progression requirements will prevent a student from moving forward toward the major. Students will be advised throughout their program of study by either an advisor in the Clemmer College Office of Student Success or the major.

Transfer Students: Transfer students should apply for admission into the program and meet with an Early Childhood Education advisor. These students must meet the requirements of the university regarding transfer and program admission.
