SUSTAINING YOUTH RESILIENCY THROUGH ORAL HISTORY IN FLOYD COUNTY, VIRGINIA
OUR WORK

ORAL HISTORY PROJECT MANUAL

MICHIEL FOUCAULT

POLITICS PHILOSOPHY CULTURE

INTERVIEWS AND OTHER WRITINGS 1977-1984

EDITED WITH AN INTRODUCTION BY LAWRENCE D. KRIESEMAN

Roots with Wings

Floyd County, Virginia
Place-based Education Project Partners:

Floyd County High School
Tony Dobkin, Principal

Burr Hollifield, CTE Director; Business Principal

Angel Myers, Digital Media Innovation Teacher

Melita Cline, Media Specialist

Old Church Gallery, Ltd., Floyd Story Center

Robertson Kiefer, Director

Chris Bedard, Executive Coordinator

Bardford University Center for Social and Cultural Research

Michelle Arbeit, Writer, Curator Emeritus

Recovering the Commons

HERBERT ROD & BETHY TAYLOR

ENDANGERED SPOOKS

FRONT FOOD

OCCUPY THE COMMONS

Student Name ____________________

Email Address ____________________
“I think we should also watch more of the movies that were made in the previous years. While watching the movies, students could write down what they thought were the strong and weak, good and bad points of the movies...”
“[This project] means a new vision to help maintain WWII from ever happening. It also means a new level of respect for those veterans who have fought in ANY war. It also means an opportunity for future generations to connect with WWII in the form of an interview.”
“[We should have] an ‘incorrect’ transcription on paper that we had to correct and then turn in for a grade...”
“I think that they taught us a lot – not only on how to use the equipment, but also things like how to shake the hand of a person when greeting them…”
“I wish that every student could have the opportunity that our class had, just so they can get the chance to learn and actually be a part of something that makes a difference in these peoples lives.”
“... the conversation was one that I will remember for the rest of my life.”