2022-2023: Educator Disposition Assessment (EDA)

2022-2023 Education Disposition Assessment (EDA): All students completed a self-assessment during year one of the program to prime students to consider key dispositions, essential to becoming and being a reading specialist in the field. Students noted the following areas as meets expectations: demonstrating positive and enthusiastic attitude, preparedness in teaching and learning, collaborating with stakeholders effectively, and social and emotional intelligence to promote personal and educational goals. Students noted the following areas as developing: self-regulated behavior and taking initiative, oral and written communication, and nuanced understanding of cultural diversity.

The program coordinators completed an EDA on each student at the end of their program (N=4). All students received scores of 3 on all components of the EDA demonstrating strong dispositions in all areas including communication, professionalism, attitude, preparedness, collaboration, self-regulation, social/emotional intelligence, and a growing appreciation for cultural and academic diversity.
