The Honors College hosted the Tennessee Collegiate Honors Conference, which included research presentations from 80 honors students from 12 institutions across Tennessee.

Additionally, the Office of Undergraduate Research, within the Honors College, hosted (virtually) the Dr. Jay S. Boland Undergraduate Research Symposium in Spring 2022. Both of these conferences will take place again at ETSU in Spring 2023.

ETSU EARLY ASSURANCE PROGRAM

The Honors College at ETSU and the Quillen College of Medicine collaborate to offer a competitive, experiential learning-based medical school Early Assurance Program (EAP), offering ETSU undergrads the opportunity to smoothly transition from undergraduate to med school studies and secure a spot in the Quillen College of Medicine earlier in their education.

The program welcomed its first cohort (above) to ETSU in Fall 2022 and will see them enter the Quillen College of Medicine in Summer 2026.

During the 2021-22 year, more than 200 students participated in an honors-enrichment program or experience through the ETSU Honors College.

In summer 2022, students in the Honors College participated in a “CITY AS TEXT” course, in which they spent a week in New York City reflecting on themes and topics.

ETSU GLOBAL YEAR
2022-2023

Honors College students completed many internships, including with Facebook, the Peace Corps, and Tennessee Hills Distillery.

Within the Center for Global Engagement, a Prestigious Awards office was established to help students identify and apply for nationally competitive scholarships.

THE HONORS COLLEGE RELOCATED to Carter Hall in Fall 2021.

Fall 2021 saw the kickoff of two new programs in the Honors College:
THE CHANGEMAKER SCHOLARS PROGRAM AND THE GLOBAL CITIZEN SCHOLARS PROGRAM.
Academic year 2022-23 is the second year for these programs in the Honors College.
