ARTA 2957 Special Topics course description: Art, Ecology and politics. This experimental studio art class is open to students from any area interested in challenging and expending their artistic practice. We will explore ecological and political contemporary issues by studying contemporary artists and activists who regularly address these issues through their work. We will use various media to develop artworks that take into account their context and relationship to an audience. As an example, we will explore themes such as sustainability, viability, participation, activism, ecology and economy. Prerequisite Core 2 or permission of the instructor

ARTA 4957-001 Special Topic "Ceramic Surface Design" course description: This course is a comprehensive exploration of ceramic surface design techniques. With a focus on the integration of surface and form, techniques covered will engage every stage of the ceramic process, from wet clay to fired object. We will use commercial and non-commercial ceramic materials to explore the use of imagery, pattern and mark making on clay in the formation of a personal narrative. Techniques will include slip application, resists, texture, transfer methods, print processes, digital imagery and decals as well as advanced after firing methods. This course uses research, writing and studio practice as the primary components of creative investigation.

ARTA 4957-002 Special Topic "Practicing Photography" Course Description: The course is devoted to looking at, responding to, and understanding student work in a variety of photographic forms. Among those approaches might be digital images, analog (film) photographs in color or black and white, alternative processes, documentary photography, studio photography, cell phone imagery, constructed images, or other means. This class emphasizes concepts, direction, and resolve in each student's photographic work. Students are required to design a project reflecting their own interests as well as choose and employ appropriate tools and materials. Due to the anticipated diversity in subject and approaches by class members, there are no specific materials required.

Special Topic Course Description: "Rephotographic Survey of Johnson City." In this advanced photography course students will work with the Archive of Appalachia to research historical images made within Johnson City and then create new photographs based on that research. Using a combination of large-format film cameras and digital technology, students will use photography to explore how the local landscape, architecture and culture has changed over the past 150 years.

ARTA 5957-001 Special Topic "Ceramic Surface Design" course description: This course is a comprehensive exploration of ceramic surface design techniques. With a focus on the integration of surface and form, techniques covered will engage every stage of the ceramic process, from wet clay to fired object. We will use commercial and non-commercial ceramic materials to explore the use of imagery, pattern and mark making on clay in the formation of a personal narrative. Techniques will include slip application, resists, texture, transfer methods, print processes, digital imagery and decals as well as advanced after firing methods. This course uses research, writing and studio practice as the primary components of creative investigation

ARTA 5957-002 Special Topic " Practicing Photography" Course Description: The course is devoted to looking at, responding to, and understanding student work in a variety of photographic forms. Among those approaches might be digital images, analog (film) photographs in color or black and white, alternative processes, documentary photography, studio photography, cell phone imagery, constructed images, or other means. This class emphasizes concepts, direction, and resolve in each studentâ€™s photographic work. Students are required to design a project reflecting their own interests as well as choose and employ appropriate tools and materials. Due to the anticipated diversity in subject and approaches by class members, there are no specific materials required.

Special Topic Course Description: "Rephotographic Survey of Johnson City." In this advanced photography course students will work with the Archive of Appalachia to research historical images made within Johnson City and then create new photographs based on that research. Using a combination of large-format film cameras and digital technology, students will use photography to explore how the local landscape, architecture and culture has changed over the past 150 years.

*CSCI 4957- 002 Special Topics - Secure Coding - Prerequisites: CSCI 1260 and CSCI 3500; This course is an overview of the desirable properties that makes software secure and less vulnerable to attacks. Specific techniques for input validation, output encoding, memory management, authentication, access control and file and database management will focus on low-level coding techniques. More advanced features covered include communication security, shared memory/race condition issues, and applied cryptography. Finally, vulnerability analysis and testing will be discussed. American Politics in Film. Prerequisite: ENGL 1020. Groucho Marx had it right: "Politics is the art of looking for trouble, finding it everywhere, diagnosing it incorrectly and applying the wrong remedies." This course will feature films about American politics, including drama, comedy, melodrama, farce, and action-adventure. Students will view a selection of films both inside and outside class and discuss how directors approach the idea of politics from a cinematic perspective. In a year of great political hullabaloo, it will be interesting to consider how the American system of politics has been portrayed through the Hollywood lens.

Note: The professor invites students to contact him silver@etsu.edu to be granted access to the first module (from last summer's course). This will allow you to sample the narrated PPTs and coordinated materials. He will also provide a copy of last year's syllabus upon request. This year's will be available a few days before the beginning of Winter Term. ENVH 3040 W01 is being taught in a very highly accelerated format in winter term. A minimum of two modules will be covered each week. A module includes readings, discussion forum, study questions, and a quiz. (The format used in other semesters has typically been one module per week). Students should not take this course if they have more than one outside commitment such as: another course; a job; family care duties; etc.. Vacation travel is ill-advised. No deadlines will fall on Christmas Day or New Year's Day. However, deadlines may occur in the early afternoons on the respective "eves" of the holidays (i.e., 12/24 and 12/31).

NOTE: This section of MATH 2010 will have a substantial technology-based component. The textbook and software to be used are free of cost to the student. However, students are expected to have internet access regularly. There will be in-class quizzes every time the class meets. Examinations will be proctored at the Testing Center, located on the first floor of the Charles C. Sherrod Library, at times outside the regular meeting times of this section. It is expected students do preparation work prior to each lecture, including but not limited to reading materials, watching video lectures, and participating in online discussion boards. The methodology of choice in this section is known as "Flip the Classroom."
