ARTA 4957-001 Special Topic "Ceramic Surface Design" course descripton: This course is a comprehensive exploration of ceramic surface design techniques. With a focus on the integration of surface and form, techniques covered will engage every stage of the ceramic process, from wet clay to fired object. We will use commercial and non-commercial ceramic materials to explore the use of imagery, pattern and mark making on clay in the formation of a personal narrative. Techniques will include slip application, resists, texture, transfer methods, print processes, digital imagery and decals as well as advanced after firing methods. This course uses research, writing and studio practice as the primary components of creative investigation.

ARTA 4957-002 Special Topic "Practicing Photography" Course Description: The course is devoted to looking at, responding to, and understanding student work in a variety of photographic forms. Among those approaches might be digital images, analog (film) photographs in color or black and white, alternative processes, documentary photography, studio photography, cell phone imagery, constructed images, or other means. This class emphasizes concepts, direction, and resolve in each student's photographic work. Students are required to design a project reflecting their own interests as well as choose and employ appropriate tools and materials. Due to the anticipated diversity in subject and approaches by class members, there are no specific materials required.

Practicing Photography •

Special Topic Course Description: "Rephotographic Survey of Johnson City." In this advanced photography course students will work with the Archive of Appalachia to research historical images made within Johnson City and then create new photographs based on that research. Using a combination of large-format film cameras and digital technology, students will use photography to explore how the local landscape, architecture and culture has changed over the past 150 years.

ARTA 4957 Special Topics course description: Art, Ecology and politics. This experimental studio art class is open to students from any area interested in challenging and expending their artistic practice. We will explore ecological and political contemporary issues by studying contemporary artists and activists who regularly address these issues through their work. We will use various media to develop artworks that take into account their context and relationship to an audience. As an example, we will explore themes such as sustainability, viability, participation, activism, ecology and economy. Prerequisite Core 2 or permission of the instructor

We will use commercial and non-commercial ceramic materials to explore the use of imagery, pattern and mark making on clay in the formation of a personal narrative. Techniques will include slip application, resists, texture, transfer methods, print processes, digital imagery and decals as well as advanced after firing methods. This course uses research, writing and studio practice as the primary components of creative investigation*

ARTA 5957-002 Special Topic " Practicing Photography" Course Description: The course is devoted to looking at, responding to, and understanding student work in a variety of photographic forms. Among those approaches might be digital images, analog (film) photographs in color or black and white, alternative processes, documentary photography, studio photography, cell phone imagery, constructed images, or other means. This class emphasizes concepts, direction, and resolve in each student's photographic work. Students are required to design a project reflecting their own interests as well as choose and employ appropriate tools and materials. Due to the anticipated diversity in subject and approaches by class members, there are no specific materials required.

Special Topic Course Description: "Rephotographic Survey of Johnson City." In this advanced photography course students will work with the Archive of Appalachia to research historical images made within Johnson City and then create new photographs based on that research. Using a combination of large-format film cameras and digital technology, students will use photography to explore how the local landscape, architecture and culture has changed over the past 150 years.

ARTA 5957 Special Topics course description: Art, Ecology and politics. This experimental studio art class is open to students from any area interested in challenging and expanding their artistic practice. We will explore ecological and political contemporary issues by studying contemporary artists and activists who regularly address these issues through their work. We will use various media to develop artworks that take into account their context and relationship to an audience. As an example, we will explore themes such as sustainability, viability, participation, activism, ecology and economy. Prerequisite Core 2 or permission of the instructor

CSCI 1100 is a required proficiency for all Freshmen students. A proficiency exam or CSCI 1100 must be taken before you will be allowed to register as a sophomore. This course does not count as a UIT intensive course. A portion of this course will be taught using ETSU's distance education system. Students are required to attend class each week. Please contact the UIT office at burke@etsu.edu or 439-6970 for more information.

CSCI 4957 -001 -Special Topics - Mobile Applications Using Xamarin - Prerequisites: CSCI 3110, CSCI 2110, or permission of the professor. Xamarin allows you to create native iOS, Android, and Windows Mobile apps by writing C# code. You will learn how to design, create, and deploy a mobile app using C# and then deploy to any of those mobile platforms. You need to have a working knowledge of C# in order to take this class. Please contact Dr Jay Jarman for more information. (439-6961 or Jarman@etsu.edu)

*CSCI 4957- 002 Special Topics - Secure Coding - Prerequisites: CSCI 1260 and CSCI 3500; This course is an overview of the desirable properties that makes software secure and less vulnerable to attacks. Specific techniques for input validation, output encoding, memory management, authentication, access control and file and database management will focus on low-level coding techniques. More advanced features covered include communication security, shared memory/race condition issues, and applied cryptography. Finally, vulnerability analysis and testing will be discussed. Animals in Literature. We will examine how animals permeate our literature as they share our lives. We'll study the functions of animals in 20th and 21st century writings to examine how authors use animals in literature, both writings in which animals are the primary focus and works in which animals may seem to appear incidentally. We will examine non-fiction, fiction, and poetry. We will explore different authors' views of relationships between humans and animals, how authors view and depict animals intrinsically, and what they say about animals' roles in the environment. We will see how understanding functions of animals in a writing may help us understand the work as a whole. We may increase our appreciation of both the animals we share the world with and animals as literary elements.

American Politics in Film. Prerequisite: ENGL 1020. Groucho Marx had it right: "Politics is the art of looking for trouble, finding it everywhere, diagnosing it incorrectly and applying the wrong remedies." This course will feature films about American politics, including drama, comedy, melodrama, farce, and action-adventure. Students will view a selection of films both inside and outside class and discuss how directors approach the idea of politics from a cinematic perspective. In a year of great political hullabaloo, it will be interesting to consider how the American system of politics has been portrayed through the Hollywood lens.

*Native American Literature: Tribal America doesn't get much attention from our political realm, our news media or our entertainment industry, but literature written by Native Americans has experienced a tremendous renaissance since the late 1960's. This course explores historical and developing literary traditions that are part of Native American culture in an effort, first, to dispel the damaging stereotypes "both negative and positive" that have long affected views of "Indians" and, second, to discover how contemporary authors, especially, are writing to create a more accurate image of native peoples and cultures as they exist. We will begin with Native American oratory in creation myths, trickster tales, and narratives of contact with Europeans; documents related to the 19th century Indian removal and the contest over the American West; literature of the "Native American Renaissance" in the late 20th and early 21st centuries. Film might be incorporated periodically as well. Readings include foundational texts of the genre: N. Scott Momaday's House Made of Dawn, Leslie Marmon Silko's Ceremony, and Louise Erdrich's Love Medicine. We'll follow these with poetry and prose by other authors such as Sherman Alexie, Susan Power, Stephen Graham Jones, Deborah A. Miranda and Diane Glancy.*

Note: The professor invites students to contact him silver@etsu.edu to be granted access to the first module (from last summer's course). This will allow you to sample the narrated PPTs and coordinated materials. He will also provide a copy of last year's syllabus upon request. This year's will be available a few days before the beginning of Winter Term. ENVH 3040 W01 is being taught in a very highly accelerated format in winter term. A minimum of two modules will be covered each week. A module includes readings, discussion forum, study questions, and a quiz. (The format used in other semesters has typically been one module per week). Students should not take this course if they have more than one outside commitment such as: another course; a job; family care duties; etc.. Vacation travel is ill-advised. No deadlines will fall on Christmas Day or New Year's Day. However, deadlines may occur in the early afternoons on the respective "eves" of the holidays (i.e., 12/24 and 12/31).

Post WW2 German Literature (1945-1960); so called "Truemmerliteratur" (Rubble Literature; "Zero Hours Literature") During this time period, German authors such as Wolfgang Borchert (1921-1947) and Nobel Prize Winner Heinrich Boell (1917-1985) explored in their works the physical and (often hidden) emotional devastation wrought by war. The reading material used in this course consists of short stories and a play. The fictional characters and situations depicted in the "Truemmerliteratur" are often understated and portrayed in simple, everyday images which tends to make the moral and psychological insights they transport even more powerful. The best of "Truemmerliteratur" endures because, on a more general level, it portrays human responses to adverse conditions.

NOTE: This section of MATH 2010 will have a substantial technology-based component. The textbook and software to be used are free of cost to the student. However, students are expected to have internet access regularly. There will be in-class quizzes every time the class meets. Examinations will be proctored at the Testing Center, located on the first floor of the Charles C. Sherrod Library, at times outside the regular meeting times of this section. It is expected students do preparation work prior to each lecture, including but not limited to reading materials, watching video lectures, and participating in online discussion boards. The methodology of choice in this section is known as "Flip the Classroom."
