Family Therapy with the Experts

The Satir Model: Family Therapy and Beyond

The Counseling Program at East Tennessee State University is proud to present Ms. Jean McLendon in the inaugural workshop for Family Therapy with the Experts, an ongoing summer series designed to bring nationally and internationally known masters of family therapy to campus. Jean will conduct an experiential workshop based on The Satir Model over four days from May 10–13, 2010.

The workshop will include experiential exercises, demonstrations with couples and families, and opportunities for practice; topics covered include:

- Family mapping and systems
- Family rules and functions
- Stress and Communication Stances
- Uses of the Wheel of Influence, & Family Life-Fact Chronologies
- The process of change
- Experiential introduction to couples and family Therapy: Simulations and supervision

An expert in large group experiential learning, Jean facilitates people learning as much from each other as they do from her. She helps people connect within, connect between (couples & dyads), and to spread connections among (family & beyond).

The Satir Model: When & Where; Costs & Credits

This workshop is designed for people interested in or already participating in the helping professions. Students and professionals in the fields of Counseling, Dental Hygiene, Education, Health, Human Services, Life Coaching, Nursing, Psychiatry, Psychology, Religious Studies, and Social Work are welcome. The workshop may be taken for professional development on a non-credit basis or as a Pre-Summer Course at ETSU.

When: May 10–13, 2010 (non-credit)

Plus for those taking it for credit:

May 21 & June 4.

Times: May 10–13: 9 AM–5 PM;

May 21 & June 4: 1–4 PM.

Where: Room 311, Warf-Pickel Hall

Clemmer College of Education

Costs: $450.00 for (non-credit) workshop

Contact: Angela Bayard at BayardA@etsu.edu to enroll or mail registration form from back Flap of brochure.

Credit: Undergraduate credit, register for HDAL 4956–001—The Satir Model - 3 credits, Pre-Summer, 2010.

Graduate credit, register for

HDAL 5956–001—The Satir Model - 3 credits, Pre-Summer, 2010

For Additional Information, contact Jim Bitter at 423-439-4194 or Bitterj@etsu.edu.

Faculty:

Jean McLendon, MSW

Widely recognized as a Master in the use of the Satir Growth model with individuals, couples, and families, Jean was mentored for more than 20 years by the late pioneer of family therapy, Virginia Satir. Jean has expanded the scope and influence of Satir’s work worldwide, traveling the globe and teaching her approach to congruent interactions. Jean has over 30 years experience as a change agent, and she maintains a multi-service private practice in Chapel Hill, NC, that includes coaching, business consultation, therapy, and supervision. She has served as faculty at multiple institutions, and she is a Past President of AVANTA—The International Virginia Satir Network.

James Robert Bitter, Ed.D., NCC

Professor (Ed.D., Counselor Education, Idaho State University, 1975). Professional interests include: marriage and family counseling, school counseling, Adlerian psychology, systems therapy, Gestalt therapy, and narrative therapy.

Email: Bitterj@etsu.edu

Jean and Jim served together as co-trainers in three of Virginia Satir’s Process Communities in the 1980s.
"It is a pleasure to experience Jean work. She has that rare capacity to be able to 'sit in the airport control tower position' and at the same time to be aware of all the 'planes' in her vision and to be able to help them find out about themselves and their relationship to each other."

-- Virginia Satir

The East Tennessee State University Counseling Program Family Therapy with the Experts

MAY 10 – 13, 2010

The Satir Model: Family Therapy & Beyond

FEATURING

Jean McLendon

Therapist and Director of the Satir Institute of the Southeast

East Tennessee State University
College of Education
Human Development and Learning
Box 70548
Johnson City, TN 37614-1707
(423) 439-7688