Source: I must credit Harvey Daniels with the idea of Lit Circles. Though I have taken small liberties with the ideas and roles, and created my own Lit Circle Notes pages, the core ideas and technique are his, not mine. To learn more, read Harvey Daniels's book Literature Circles: Voice and Choice in the Student-Centered Classroom (Stenhouse 1994)

Lit Circle Notes: Overview of the Roles

Discussion Director: Your role demands that you identify the important aspects of your assigned text, and develop questions your group will want to discuss. Focus on the major themes or “big ideas” in the text and your reaction to those ideas. What interests you will most likely interest those in your group. You are also responsible for facilitating your group’s discussion.

Sample Questions

- What were you thinking about as you read?
 - What did the text make you think about?
 - What do you think this text/passage was about?
 - How might other people (of different backgrounds) think about this text/passage?
 - What one question would you ask the writer if you got the chance? Why?
 - What are the most important ideas/moments in this text/section?
 - What do you think will happen next--and why?
 - What was the most important change in this section? How and why did it happen?

Literary Luminary: You find passages your group would like to/should hear read aloud. These passages should be memorable, interesting, puzzling, funny, or important. Your notes should include the quotations but also why you chose them, and what you want to say about them. You can either read the passage aloud yourself or ask members of your group to read roles.

Sample Questions

- What were you thinking about as you read?
 - What did the text make you think about?
 - What do you think this text/passage was about?
 - How might other people (of different backgrounds) think about this text/passage?
 - What one question would you ask the writer if you got the chance? Why?
 - What are the most important ideas/moments in this text/section?
 - What do you think will happen next--and why?
 - What was the most important change in this section? How and why did it happen?

Illustrator: Your role is to draw what you read. This might mean drawing a scene as a cartoon-like sequence, or an important scene so readers can better understand the action. You can draw maps or organizational trees to show how one person, place, or event relates to the others. Use the notes area to explain how your drawing relates to the text. Label your drawings so we know who the characters are. Make your drawing on the back of this page or on a separate sheet of paper.

Sample Questions

- Ask members of your group, “What do you think this picture means?”
 - Why did you choose this scene to illustrate?
 - How does this drawing relate to the story?
 - Why did you choose to draw it the way you did?
 - What do we see--i.e., who and/or what is in this picture?
 - What, if anything, did drawing it help you see that you had not noticed before?
 - What did this quotation/passage make you think about when you read it?
 - What are you trying to accomplish through this drawing?

Connector: Your job is to connect what you are reading with what you are studying or with the world outside of school. You can connect the story to events in your own life, news events, political events, or popular trends. Another important source of connections is books you’ve already read. The connections should be meaningful to you and those in your group.

Sample Questions

- What connections can you make to your own life?
 - What other places or people could you compare this story to?
 - What other books or stories might you compare to this one?
 - What other characters or authors might you compare to this one?
 - What is the most interesting or important connection that comes to mind?
 - How does this section relate to those that came before it?

Lit Circle Notes: Exemplars and Reminders

Overview: Few people are developing their ideas; few are following the Cornell format; few are doing what I would call complete work. Nearly all are running great discussions. Use these exemplars to help you improve your notes this week. You are sophomores in high school: I expect daily evidence of all you've learned to do.

Literary Luminary "I was told by my father that I had no free will, no control whatsoever over my destiny, that each minute detail about my life, my existence---before now and to come---were all contained in a big scroll made of my life, over which my ancestors pondered day and night as they alternately tossed random situations into my life..." (p. 126, ¶4, from Kaffir Boy)	Response This quote is important because it makes you think about your future. When I was reading this, I stopped for a second and thought about my destiny. There is no way you can avoid the future. Every second counts. In a few seconds you can make a wrong decision. Sooner or later those seconds turn into minutes, which turn into hours that turn into days... Your destiny is something you come up with by making those decisions. What if someone just scrambled a few obstacles together and then put them in our destiny book? We must learn to make correct choices. They might just change some obstacles in the destiny book. We might be able to overcome those challenges that were put in the future. (Jessica Perez about Kaffir Boy)
Connector What other places can you compare this to?	Response This passage reminds me of Germany during the Holocaust. The police in South Africa are just like the Nazis banging on the Jewish doors and looking for the Jewish star or other required identification papers; this is how they use the blacks' passbooks in South Africa. (Jen Lescher about Kaffir Boy)
Summarizer What are the most important events? Why is this important?	Response He was being rude to the "shit men" and they made him get in a bucket of night soil. Also they had to move out of their shack and into another one and Alexandra will soon be torn down. He almost died from the braziere being inside. It taught him not to make fun of people, especially for their jobs because they don't want to do what they are doing. Moving into another shack is important because it shows how poor they are and how they do whatever the whites say, including picking up their lives and leaving. They do what they say because they fear being arrested. (Jen Lescher about Kaffir Boy)
Discussion Director Did they depend on witchcraft and voodoo so they don't have to take ownership of bad things that happened?	Response Yes, they depended very much on voodoo and witchcraft. They seemed to blame everything bad on the witches and evil ancestral spirits. They blamed no money, not being able to find a job, the police. They were all some sort of evil spirit. It was never the fault of the living person, but always the doing of a nonliving spirit. [They believed this because... I also noticed that when x would happen, they believed...] (Jennifer Edl, about Kaffir Boy)

When you have finished your conferencing, each group member is required to complete the Discussion Debriefing. You will all turn in your completed worksheets for the group meeting before the end of class. Anything turned in after the class is considered late and not accepted for a grade.
